To My Friends and Patrons

TAKE much pleasure in presenting you with a copy of my Dahlia Catalogue and Cultural Guide for 1906. In many respects it is an improvement over the previous issue; new cuts, engraved from photographs made the past season especially for this issue, having been added; also, additional cultural notes, together with other original matter, which should prove interesting, if not instructive, to all lovers of the queen of autumn flowers. It also contains quite a number of fine new varieties in all classes, which will prove very welcome additions, especially in the Cactus class, many of which will surely prove a revelation to those who have not kept in close touch with the Dahlia during its recent rapid march of progress.

Indeed, so rapid and so wonderful have been these improvements in form and color in this popular flower in recent years that it seems little less than marvelous. And one can but wonder what the future holds in store for this beautiful flower, which not only surpasses the rose in beauty, but rivals the chrysanthemum in its seemingly endless variation of forms, many of which are so entirely distinct and dissimilar as to suggest absolutely no relationship whatever.

My stock of all classes is field-grown, and is exceptionally fine this year, having had a long season in which to grow, and the best possible cultivation, which has resulted in magnificent clumps of the strongest vitality in nearly all varieties, from which I am enabled to get roots of extra size and quality, suitable for the most exacting trade—the kind I have always sought—the kind that demands that quality shall be the first essential.

The past season was very favorable for bloom in nearly all sections, which fact should strengthen your courage and stimulate your enthusiasm to make early plans for the ensuing year. I trust that you will find something that appeals to your fancy among the four hundred varieties described on the following pages, and that I may receive at least a small share of your patronage for the year 1906.

Again returning thanks for esteemed favors in the past and soliciting a continuance of the same, with the same promise of entire satisfaction to all, I remain,

Yours respectfully,

Woburn, Mass., February 1, 1906.  EDGAR W. ELA.

Classification of Dahlias

Dahlias are divided into two divisions, double and single; and each division is again divided into classes, or sections, according to size, form of flower and arrangement of colors.

Double Dahlias are divided into the following sections: Show, Fancy, Pompon, Decorative and Cactus.

Show Dahlias. These are large, compact, double to the center, and very regular in outline, as though grown in a mold; while in many varieties the petals reflex to the stem, forming a perfect ball. The flowers are all either solid, self-colored or edged, tipped or shaded darker than the ground color.

Fancy Dahlias. This section is identical in form with that of the Show Dahlia, but is quite distinct from that class in the arrangement of its colors; the flowers being tipped or edged lighter than the ground color, or splashed, striped, penciled, mottled and variegated in every conceivable manner. They are, as a rule, quite variable, and often show but one color. They will “throw” fancy flowers in some localities and solid colors in others, with no apparent cause.

Pompon Dahlias. This class is also identical in form with that of the Show and Fancy sections, differing only in the size of its flowers, which are too small to be included in those sections.

Cactus Dahlias. This class is of comparatively recent introduction and is entirely distinct from any other class. The flowers are loosely and artistically formed, the petals, as a rule, being long and tubular; the edges being rolled or folded backward instead of forward, like those of the Show, Fancy and Pompon sections, until they nearly, and in some varieties actually meet throughout their entire length, ending in a point or a fluted termination; some varieties having nearly straight petals, and others being gracefully incurved.

Decorative Dahlias. The flowers in this section have long, broad, flat and nearly straight petals, though in a few varieties the petals reflex to the stem. They resemble, in some degree, some of the older forms of the Cactus Dahlia, but on account of the flatness of their petals and the absence of the backward roll, which characterizes the Cactus Dahlia, they are designated Decorative.

Single Dahlias. These have but one row of petals, usually eight, and embrace the full range of colors, and in form are quite as varied as the double varieties, some having broad, flat, overlapping petals, and others, long, narrow, twisted and pointed petals, like the double Cactus Dahlia.

Selection of Varieties. While it is the privilege of all persons to make their own selections those who are unacquainted with the characteristics of the varieties named would do well to leave the selection to me as far as possible, after stating preference for class and color, and whether wanted for specimen plants or for cut-flowers, some varieties being too unsymmetrical for specimen plants, and others having too short stems for cut-flowers. When the selection is left entirely to me, orders, for any class, will be filled at a very liberal discount from list prices.

SUBSTITUTION

In case the stock of any variety ordered is exhausted, customers will please say whether I shall substitute with a similar variety of equal or greater merit, or ship the order partly filled.

It is always well to allow a little latitude in the filling of an order, unless one is very particular, by naming a few extra varieties with which to substitute. If necessary, which often saves considerable valuable time and correspondence,

Always give name of express, if any, as well as post-office, which leaves it optional to ship prepaid shipments as circumstances may demand.

Early Orders. As the demand for many new varieties often exceeds the supply, it is advisable to order early to avoid disappointment. Orders will be booked for spring delivery any time of the year.

FIELD ROOTS, VERSUS POT ROOTS AND PLANTS

In view of the great disparity in the size of Dahlia roots, the various forms in which Dahlias are offered by different dealers and the corresponding difference in prices, I have graded my stock in two sizes in order to more properly adjust my prices to suit existing conditions. The quality of both grades is the same, the difference being in size only.

The large number of orders received from both amateur and professional gardeners, calling for large field-grown roots, betokens a widespread preference for this kind of stock. While pot-grown roots may, with judicious treatment, make good plants, they do not push the plant along as fast as strong field roots of larger size, and require a longer season in which to accomplish the same results, a fact of vital importance to those planting in localities frequented by early frosts. They are easier to handle than large roots, and occupy comparatively little space, a matter of grave importance, of course, where rents are expensive and space is valuable.

The same remarks apply with equal force to most varieties of rooted cuttings (green plants), to which may be added the very serious objection that many varieties fail to make a clump of roots of sufficient size to keep through the winter.

Cuttings can be produced for less than one-fourth of the cost of field roots, which, judging from my own experience with them, about represents their relative value.
PRICES

The dozen rate of each variety is ten times the price of a single root; any six varieties at the dozen rate.

The prices quoted in this Catalogue are for strong field-grown roots, with one or more good sprouts or eyes, and are as low as is consistent with the extra care and labor required to grow carefully inspected stock, from which all plants showing the slightest imperfection or tendency to resort to inferior types have been excluded. First-size roots weigh from three to five pounds per dozen, averaging about four pounds. Some varieties may be had weighing from eight to ten pounds per dozen, the price of which is the same as first size, purchaser to pay transportation charges. Second-size roots weigh from one to one and one-half pounds per dozen, according to variety. All prices quoted in this Catalogue include free delivery, except for extra-heavy stock as above noted. Special prices quoted on collections of one hundred or more.

Remittances. Make remittances by Post-office or Express Money Order, Registered Letter or Bank Draft. Stamps (one-and two-cent) in amounts less than one dollar, accepted as cash.

CULTURAL NOTES

Select rich, deep soil, avoiding shady places and close proximity to large trees, and make it fine and mellow by plowing or spading a foot deep or more where the plants are to stand. Plant Cactus, Decorative, Show, Fancy and Single varieties 3 or 4 feet apart, and Pompons 2 to 2½ feet apart in the row. Plant 4 to 6 inches deep and cover the roots from 1 to 2 inches deep at time of planting. Allow but a single stalk to grow in a place, and when this is well above ground draw the soil in around it gradually as it grows until the ground is level, but do not hill-up. Keep the surface free from weeds, fine and mellow all the time, by stirring the soil frequently and thoroughly. Never allow a crust to form around the plants. If necessary, water thoroughly once a week, not oftener, taking care not to wet the blooms, and stir the soil the next day. Cease all deep cultivation before the plants come into bloom, and do not again stir the soil deeper than 1½ inches. When the plants begin to bloom, a heavy mulching of fine, decomposed stable manure will be very beneficial. It will not only help to make fine, large flowers instead of foliage, which often happens when the soil is made too rich at time of planting, but will prevent evaporation and keep the ground free from weeds. In the absence of manure, a small handful of bone meal and nitrate of soda—four parts bone to one part soda—finely pulverized and thoroughly mixed, spread uniformly around the plants, covering a space 1½ feet or more in diameter, and stirred lightly into the soil, will give excellent results in an increased size of flowers; but it should not be used until the flowers begin to decrease in size. The best results are obtained only by fertilizing and cultivating freely, thoroughly and intelligently, the results usually being proportionate to the degree of intelligence used and the effort expended in cultivation, contingent, of course, in some degree on climatic conditions. Tall varieties may be dwarfed about one-third in height by pinching off the top of the plant just above the upper set of leaves when it first comes through the ground, which forces it to branch at the surface instead of running up into a single, tall stalk. This operation may be repeated several times on the new branches as they make new growth. Stake securely as a protection against the wind. As a preventive against cut-worms, use a small handful of slaked lime around each plant as soon as it comes through the ground.

Dahlias should not be planted until the ground becomes thoroughly warmed. When the weather becomes settled and warm, usually about May 15 in this latitude, the Dahlia makes a rapid growth and usually proves more satisfactory than when planted too early. Nothing, whatever, is gained by planting in advance of favorable conditions, and, then again, being a fall flower, plants that come into bloom the latter part of August will have better flowers the rest of the season than those that come into bloom in July. Dahlias may be planted in this section from May 15 to June 15, according to varieties, location and the purpose for which they are wanted.

Thinning and Disbudding. Some varieties of Dahlias require thinning and disbudding to produce the best flowers. Varieties having an excessive amount of foliage and small growth should have a considerable part of their branches removed, while those having more buds than can be properly developed or matured should be disbudded. The operation in no way endangers the plants, and any one can do it. Thin and disbud if necessary, moderately or severely as conditions may seem to require. Very few varieties require this treatment unless very large flowers are wanted, and Pompon and Single Dahlias rarely, if ever.

Lifting the Clumps in Fall. Immediately after the plants are killed to the ground by frost, lift the clumps, and after removing the loose soil, expose to the sun and air a few hours to dry. Cut off the stalks quite close to the clump and pack, not too closely, in boxes or barrels and store in a frost-proof place, where extremes of temperature may be avoided. A cellar in which there is a moderate amount of moisture, with a temperature of about 45°, will give best results with most varieties. A covering of dry coal ashes, saw-dust, earth or sand—the two latter preferred—will usually prevent the roots from shriveling, by excluding the air and preserving a more even temperature. Be very careful, however, not to cover any clumps not perfectly dry.

Specimen Flowers. In order to assist present and prospective customers to make selections, free from the difficulties sometimes experienced in making selections from catalogue descriptions. I will send specimen flowers of Dahlias of any class and color, prepaid, with name and price attached, for one cent each during the season of bloom, but not on any particular date. By this means customers are enabled to make an intelligent and satisfactory selection, and incur absolutely no risk of purchasing varieties not to their taste. I do not supply blooms for exhibition.

MISTAKES

Notwithstanding all efforts to guard against mistakes, they will sometimes occur. Customers are requested to report such promptly, together with reasonable proof, so that they may be corrected without delay.

Visitors are Welcome any Day of the Week. Woburn is located on the southern division of the Boston and Maine railroad 10 miles from Boston. Leave train at Central Square; route, Eaton avenue and Fryeburg road. Electric cars of the Boston and Northern street railway, North Woburn and Boston, pass within seven minutes’ walk of the field. Leave car at Eaton avenue and proceed as above noted. Cars on this line make connection at the Sullivan Square terminal, Boston, with the Boston Elevated. Fare from any part of Boston 10 cents. Carriage service at Woburn station.

SHOW DAHLIAS

The approximate height of all Dahlias herein noted is the average height of varieties grown under favorable conditions, and consequently they will vary, accordingly, in height and size with the varying conditions of soil, climate and cultivation.

A. D. Livoni. Beautiful, soft sea-shell pink; one of the very best pink Show Dahlias. 4 ft. 1st size 20c., 2d size 15c.

FANCY DAHLIAS

Note.—The term "Fancy Dahlia," is often somewhat misleading to those not versed in Dahlia lore, conveying in many instances an erroneous idea of superiority.
The word "fancy" in Dahlia parlance is used as a class distinction only, denoting no particular degree of excellence, and is applied to all bi-colored varieties that are marked in accordance with the rules governing this class. In most cases it would be more clearly expressed by the more common and more expressive word "variegated." But some variegated Dahlias are not fancy, hence the designation Fancy Dahlia.

American Flag. Pure white, edged cherry-red; sometimes a central stripe of same color. 3 ft. 1st size 20 cts., 2d size 12 cts.
Buffalo Bill. Buff, striped vermilion; large and constant. 4 ft. 1st size 30 cts., 2d size 20 cts.

CACTUS DAHLIAS

THE LATEST ACQUISITIONS

The varieties listed below are all imported, and are the latest and best introductions in the Cactus class. Many of them, on account of their distinctive features of form and color, are certainly the finest and most elegant of any yet produced. Nearly all of them are certified varieties, having received a "First-Class Certificate" or an "Award of Merit" or both from the leading horticultural societies of Great Britain.

The Royal Horticultural Society is one of the oldest, largest and best known horticultural societies in the world. And an "Award of Merit" from this society or a "First-Class Certificate" from the National Dahlia Society gives to a Dahlia the same standing in the floral world that a bank "certification" gives to a "check" in the commercial world.

MY SELECTION—NO TWO ALIKE

When the selection is left entirely to me, I will send, prepaid, twenty named varieties in 2d size roots for $1, or same in 1st size roots, by express, at purchaser's expense. This collection will be made up from the different classes, and will include varieties listed in this catalogue. No requests for any particular variety in above collection can be granted.
DECORATIVE DAHLIAS
NEW VARIETIES

Blue Oban. A seedling from Oban and possessing the same characteristics, but of a clear shade of lavender-blue, probably the nearest approach to true blue of any Dahlia yet introduced. Like its parent, it is extra fine for cutting. Truly a novelty of much merit. 5 feet. 1st size 30 cts., 2d size 20 cts.

Mad. Burrell. A beautiful, new Fancy Decorative from France. An acquisition of much value and worthy of a place in the most exclusive gardens. The color is silvery lilac, beautifully striped with crimson-purple. A grand flower. 5½ ft. 1st size $1, 2d size 75 cts.

Mad. Van den Dael. A magnificent Dahlia of large size and beautiful outline, artistically arranged and carried on stems 12 to 18 inches long. One of the very best of the recent acquisitions. 3 ft. 1st size 60 cts., 2d size 40 cts.

Mrs. Roosevelt. This grand new Dahlia received "first prize" from the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, September, 1904, for the best Dahlia introduced within three years. The flowers are of the largest size, often 6 to 8 inches in diameter, full and double to the center, and borne on tremendously long stems, making it one of the most valuable sorts in cultivation for cutting. It is a remarkably free bloomer and the cut blooms last a long time; delicate soft pink. 3½ ft. 1st size 60 cts., 2d size 40 cts.

Progress. A striking new Fancy Decorative Dahlia, strongly recommended on account of its lovely and unique coloring—being a soft rosy lake, beautifully penciled and spotted crimson. A strong grower and good bloomer, showing no tendency to produce other than fancy flowers. 5 ft. 1st size 50 cts., 2d size 35 cts.

SINGLE DAHLIAS

SINGLE CACTUS DAHLIAS

"The beauties and grace of the Single Cactus varieties far exceed (in my opinion) any of the other sections; their light and elegant forms and vivid colorings all seem to lend themselves so gracefully to the art of the decorator. When cut and lightly arranged in conjunction with Gypsophila paniculata, or any light decorative grass, nothing can exceed their elegance. Slowly and surely they are pushing their charms to the front. Many are the remarks I have heard about them when first brought before the public—'thin, washy, not up to much don't care about them.' My advice to all is, to grow a few plants, arrange a vase when in flower, and I feel certain they will be pleased with the result. Their cultural requirements are the same as the other sections, without the thinning of shoots and buds so often recommended for the Double Cactus Dahlias. Cut with long stems in the early morning, flowers in a young stage. Grown in beds or borders, they are very attractive for garden decorations, starting to flower early and lasting until frost cuts them off."—A. MANSON in Gardening World.
